GONE TO REST INDISCRETE

FUNERAL OF MRS. MAXWELL.

Held at Marlboro Quaker Church. Attended by Large Number of People. The Church of Her Childhood--Rev. Mr. Andrews Conducts Funeral.

Monday morning, the remains of Mrs. Della Maxwell, who died Saturday morning at her home, 603 W. Lee street, Greensboro, were conveyed to Marlboro Quaker cemetery in Randolph county, where interment took place.

Accompanying the remains were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Millikan, brother and sister in law respectively of the deceased; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Richardson, brother-in-law and sister, and daughter, Miss Juanita, and Rev. Mr. Andrews, all of Greensboro; Miss Maie Farlowe, of High Point, a cousin; Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Davis, of Edgar, brother-in-law and sister; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Millikan, of Staley, half brother and sister-in-law; R. M. Bulla, of Randleman; W. L. Stamey, of High Point, and others.

The funeral services occurred at the Marlboro Quaker church, conducted by Rev. R. M. Andrews, of the M. P. church of Greensboro, who said: "We have met here this morning to pay our respects to our dear sister, relative and friend, Della Maxwell. The deceased was twice married, two sons and one daughter survive by her first union; Messrs. Troy and Jim and Miss Olive Hoover; one brother, three half brothers and four sisters. For many months Mrs. Maxwell had suffered greatly with that wasting disease, and while it is natural for loved ones to shed tears of sorrow at her going, still I am glad that she is now free from her great affliction and that death is a sweet relief.

Mr. Andrews then read a chapter from the Bible: "Let not your hearts be troubled," a favorite quotation of the deceased. "In my Father's house are many mansions; I go to prepare a place for you" x x "Jesus says I'm the Way, and the Truth and whatsoever ye ask of Me I will give unto thee," and other quotations from the 14th Chapter of St. John, as well as from the 23rd Psalm: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want," etc., were read as favorite verses of the deceased.

"I would be untrue to myself if I didn't bear personal testimony of her readiness to go," said the speaker. "I visited her frequently and it has been a spiritual benediction to me. She was a devout Christian and her only regret was that she had not been able to do more in her limited time for the Master's cause. She kept the Bible before her until too weak to read the word and then she would ask me to read and sing to her. Just a short while before death I repeated the 23rd Psalm and sang to her and she enjoyed it so much. My life has been blessed by coming into contact with such a woman."

Following Mr. Andrews' talk "Sweet Hour of Prayer" was sung, after which M. A. Farlow, an uncle of the deceased, made a short talk.

The casket was opened and scores of sorrowing friends and the relatives looked for the last time on earth at the face of Mrs. Maxwell.

The deceased was a member of Wesley Memorial church, this city.

The floral offerings were very pretty and looked so unusually bright and fragrant out there in that little country graveyard, transplanted as they were from the hot houses of the city in all their frailty and tenderness to breathe the pure air, out in God's great open.

Only a few days ago the father was laid to rest there and this week the daughter, and--surely the hand of affliction has rested heavily on this family, but it is not for mortal man to complain.

The scene of the burial is close to the old home place where as a child she attended services at this Quaker church, and where every one knew her and loved her--and today they gathered for miles around to pay their last sad respects in the little white church of her parents. Tenderly they laid her frail body in the ground and bedecked her grave with beautiful flowers, bouquets typical of the resurrection--of the beauty and joys awaiting their dead friend.

The family and relatives have the sincere sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

GETTING READY TO BUILD.

Crowder Bros., proprietors of the High Point Steam Laundry, are having the large oak tree taken down on their lot on East Washington street, just above the People's Motor company, preparatory to commencing work on their laundry building. This old tree is nearly a century old and is one of the largest in the state. It is truly one of the old landmarks of the city.

DOINGS IN MONDAY'S COURT.

Ennos Croft, charged with an assault on John Briles with a whisky bottle was given 30 days on the road Monday in Recorder's court. Croft has a bad record, but told of a wife and five weeks' old baby, and the tender-hearted judge said he would reconsider, although such a man "should be hung."

In the case of Ennos Croft the sentence of 30 days on the road was suspended, if Croft is not indicted again within 12 months. He had to pay a fine of $5 and costs, however.

A. R. Williams, colored, got on a spree, broke out $10 worth of window panes, sustained badly lacerated hands and otherwise played the devil. He was ordered to pay $10 for damages, and the costs in the cases against him.

Bert Gilliam and Will Hill paid $5 each and costs for disturbing the peace Sunday afternoon in front of the Broad street Greek restaurant.

KRESS TO BUILD HERE.

A contract has been let for the building of a store for the Kress people on South Main street, to W. P. Rose, of Goldsboro. The electrical work will be done by the Comstock Electric company, a local concern.

The building will be one and a half stories, cost $25,000, and extend from Main to Rankin streets, a distance of 200 feet. The store will be up-to-date in every respect and built of the best material in keeping with the valuable lot on which it is located.

Kress has these 50 and 100 stores all over the country and for sometime the company has been planning to open a store here, in fact have owned the present location for five years and just this year decided to build.

THREE QUESTIONS INVOLVED.

Mr. Editor:

In deciding how to vote on the bond issue, three things are essential.

First. Increase in taxes. The city can't stand a further increase in interest (which is now $27,000) or expense without more income, which of course means increased taxation.

Second. The plan under which the money will be spent. It will cost the city 40 to 45 per cent. to cross section, curbing, gutter and drainage and the $50,000 bond issue, with the property owner's part, will not pave Main street adequately.

Third. What streets are to be paved now? Most probably Main street. The only thing for the people to do is to make up their minds, if we are to ever get good streets in any reasonable length of time that they will have to pay for them. It would take a half million dollar bond issue to put the principal streets in good condition. Why not say what it will cost the tax payers to do this, then make the amount large enough to do some good and see if the people desire to approve of the plan.

While practically every phase of social welfare, such as morals, education, public health, improvement of country life, the drug evil, child labor, prison reforms, and others were studied and discussed, the major theme of the conference seemed to be the welfare of the child, its health, morals, education and development.

What He Does Not Print

The average newspaper man has much to say on the subject of the news that he prints, and as a rule, there is plenty and of sufficient variety to appeal to all classes of readers. The good citizens may wish that there were more of the things in which he is especially interested, but being fair minded will readily concede that his wish is impossible of fulfillment, as the tastes of many have to be consulted.

There are a few in every community who censure the editor because he does not print an occasional happening that may appear of great importance to these few. The editor rarely explains: It would be a waste of words. But the chances are that in his heart of hearts he is more proud of the fact that he does not print some things than of all the big stories that he has ever served up to his readers. He recalls in after years, not the things that he did print, but those that remained unprinted, says the Burlington Hawk-Eye. There he has saved a family or a circle of friends or some individual, shame and grief and he can not doubt, that such things are remembered and that there is a warm spot in the hearts of those interested, because the newspaper man suspended the rules and refused to print what a number of the minority would have considered the best kind of a story.

Whether he is ever rewarded in any or not, his own conscience brings him a reward that is of sufficient value to recompense him over and over again for everything that may be said against this course. He may be ridiculed by a few and upbraided by others, but his is a sounder sleep, his is a greater love and respect for his calling, because it enables him thus to do good in a manner that could be accomplished in no other way. Occasionally some one prominent in his own profession may attempt to convince him of the error of his ways. But he goes on doing good in his own way and permits no one or nothing to swerve him from his course. He may have many faults, there are few who have them not, but this one virtue will outweigh all faults and in the opinion of those who know him best, that one virtue will atone for all the mistakes that he could possibly make. No matter how often he may err--in a case of that kind he is always right.

Minister in Bad Plight

Rev. E. D. McLean, a Methodist minister of this state, stopped off here yesterday a few hours between trains and found that he had lost or been robbed of $38.00 when he went to pay for a meal at a restaurant. Rev. Gilbert Rowe, an acquaintance, helped him out of the embarrassing position.

IS CLOSED UP

Friday afternoon E. E. Mendenhall, of Greensboro, representing creditors to the amount of $750, came over to High Point with the necessary papers to place the I. A. Morris & Bro. store in bankruptcy, Judge Boyd signing the decree. Mr. Mendenhall is receiver until January 31, the date set for the hearing and the store will continue to sell goods to that time.

The Morris family have had three stores in operation here up to last week, on East Washington, East Commerce and one in the western part of the city. Last week the store on East Commerce was vacated leaving the two in operation. They sold goods at a very low price and did a big business and it seems that they now owe for a big part of same, the full indebtedness not being known at this time. Very few dollars are owing by this firm to High Point people, which is a noteworthy fact.

IN MEMORIAM

William Gaston Bradshaw. In regular meeting assembled, on January 25, 1916, the board of directors of the Commercial National bank, of High Point, North Carolina, by unanimous vote, passed the following minute in order to perpetuate upon its records an expression of personal affection for a friend, and an appreciation of the valued services of an able official:

When this bank entered upon its career, almost a quarter of a century ago, William Gaston Bradshaw was one of the charter members and a prime mover in the enterprise. From that date until within a few days of his entry into rest, his wise counsel has been much sought and often followed, and his administration as cashier, vice-president and director has wrought much of the successful history of the institution. His fine judgment, poise, and progressive conservatism have always been potent in forming the policies of the bank. His strength of intellect and broad vision gave him peculiar fitness to sit in the councils of a financial institution. His mind worked vigorously and accurately, and he had little patience with the mental vagrant who sought to scan the broad sweep of the horizon when the occasion called for intensive concentration upon the matter directly in hand. He was interested to a degree in all matters which touched the civic, social and religious life about him, and was ever a leader in the forward movements of his church and state. His family life was ideal--in fact, he was a well-rounded and a many-sided man, and there is no phase of our city's life that is not the poorer since he left it.

We wish it were possible for us to speak some word that might bring surcease of sorrow to his grief-stricken wife and children; they, as we, know that he was ready to answer when his name was called, and that his whole life was but one grand preparation for his final entry into that other and larger existence made ready for the faithful from the foundation of the world.

Let this memorial be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, printed in the newspapers of the city, and a copy sent to the sorrowing family.

To Keep the Work Going

Greensboro has started the movement to have the macadam road between there and here completed at earliest possible time instead of waiting several years, claiming that it is a too important highway for bad roads and also that it is expensive and a waste of money to keep patching up the bad part of the road, believing a way can be provided to secure the money to complete the work. Exactly so and High Point is of the same opinion.
